AUPO 2024

The AUPO will host an in-person exhibit hall for the first time in 2024. We invite you to take advantage of this special opportunity to reach the highest levels of academic ophthalmology leadership in one location. Our medium-sized meeting format provides exceptional opportunity for quality one-on-one interactions.

The Association of University Professors of Ophthalmology (AUPO), founded in 1966, is the voice of academic ophthalmology. Through its mission, AUPO promotes medical education, research, and patient care in ophthalmology.

AUPO's Annual Meeting, a highlight for members each year, is a four-day event, where 500+ decision-makers for academic ophthalmology gather to learn, share, and network. Educational content covers the missions of academic departments: research, education, patient care, outreach, and workforce diversity. The educational programming comprises a multi-faceted meeting format, including symposia, workshops, roundtable discussions, paper and poster sessions, and social activities. The programming encompasses topics appropriate to academic department chairs, residency program directors and associate program directors, research directors, directors of medical student education, senior administrators, residency program coordinators, along with fellowship directors, and other faculty members. Residents, fellows and medical students also participate in paper and poster sessions.

Women Professors of Ophthalmology (WPO)

Established in 2021, the mission of Women Professors of Ophthalmology (WPO) is to foster the professional growth and advancement of women ophthalmologists and vision researchers in academia through a peer mentoring network of women Professors in our field. Through this network, WPO aims to enhance the professional development and equity of women in academic ophthalmology.

WPO's network of mentors is available to academic ophthalmologists and vision researchers at all stages of their career. Created by AUPO members Drs.
