Welcome

I would like to welcome you to the 51st annual meeting of the Association of University Professors of Ophthalmology (AUPO) being held January 25–28, 2017 in San Diego, California. The AUPO Board of Trustees in conjunction with the associate member leadership councils, have worked to develop a relevant program addressing the priorities of our academic missions of research, education and patient care. We have several priority programs that we believe are particularly applicable to our own leadership roles. Our meeting kicks off with the inaugural "Bootcamp for New Chairs," moderated by Russell Van Gelder and Donald Budenz. Our plenary session starts with Thursday's symposium, "New Payment Models and Ophthalmology," coordinated by Paul Sternberg and George Williams.

We will recognize our educators with the Straatsma Award for Excellence in Resident Education presented by Steven Gedde. Additionally, Rukhsana Mirza will receive the award for Excellence in Medical Student Education.

The President's Symposium on Friday, "The Journey from Medical Student to Ophthalmology Resident," will highlight how we attract medical students to our specialty with a focus on increasing diversity in our residency programs and our profession.

Our popular "Breakfast with Colleagues" will be held on Friday and Saturday mornings, allowing increased access to these roundtable discussions. In addition, we have vibrant sessions planned throughout the meeting by our Program Director, Medical Student Educator, and Research Director councils.

The meeting will wind up Saturday with an enlightening symposium on wellness and work-life balance, followed by informative and practical workshops.

With this annual meeting, AUPO continues in its mission to represent and promote academic ophthalmology. Active participation by all our members ensures that we fully represent the entire membership.

If you have a unique area of expertise or want to become more involved in AUPO activities, express your interest to a member of the Board of Trustees or to our EVP, Steven Feldon.

Oscar A. Cruz, MD President AUPO

AUPO History

The Association of University Professors of Ophthalmology (AUPO) was founded in 1966 by several leaders in academic ophthalmology as an organization dedicated to research and education. The mission of AUPO is to serve, strengthen, and represent departments of ophthalmology; to provide support, information, and leadership opportunities to department chairs, program directors, and other faculty members; to promote excellence in ophthalmic education; to foster vision research and to promote ethical practice and excellence in eye care to ensure the best possible vision for the public. As such, AUPO is the voice of academic ophthalmology.

Initially including only chairs of ophthalmology divisions or departments in medical schools, the membership was later enlarged to include members who are chairs or co-chairs of departments or divisions of ophthalmology in any institutions that sponsor accredited ophthalmology residency training programs. A category of associate membership was established for residency program directors of accredited residency training programs in ophthalmology who do not chair their department or division. Canadian chairs and their residency program directors became eligible for membership in 1996. In 2006 and 2009 respectively, research directors and medical student educators in departments or divisions of ophthalmology in medical schools or other institutions sponsoring accredited ophthalmology residency training programs, became eligible for associate membership. In 2015 associate program directors were also included.

Special acknowledgement is due to the continuing support that has been provided by Research to Prevent Blindness (RPB) since the creation of AUPO in 1966. In addition to a very generous unrestricted donation and the support of the AUPO/RPB Resident and Fellow Research Forum, RPB joined with AUPO to match the donation of Bernard Becker, MD, initiating the Physician-Scientist Award, which was awarded in 2001 and 2006. Without the active participation by RPB since its founding, AUPO certainly would not have reached its current level of importance.

The Straatsma Award for Excellence in Resident Education was established in 2002 by AUPO and the American Academy of Ophthalmology (Academy). Program Directors have been recognized for this award each year since its inception. In 2014 AUPO and the Academy established the Excellence in Medical Student Education Award.

The AUPO Fellowship Compliance Committee (FCC) was created in 2005 to provide training requirements for ophthalmology fellowships. It offers educational standards, protection of the public, institutions, and trainees, accountability and enforcement. To date, six ophthalmic subspecialties, supported by eight ophthalmic subspecialty societies, voluntarily participate in the compliance program. Its goals are accomplished by the following objectives: 1) Create standards for the participating subspecialties in establishing program requirements. 2) Define criteria for each participating subspecialty through the action of its own supporting organization(s), constituting standards for fellowship training including curriculum, research and clinical experience. 3) Determine initial compliance of individual fellowship programs through an application process. 4) Monitor compliance of individual fellowship programs with their subspecialty society's program requirements. 5) Monitor compliant programs on a regular review basis to assure that they remain in compliance. 6) Make compliance status publicly available so that fellowship applicants may use this information in their decision, likewise mentors will have compliance status available when advising residents on fellowship.

AUPO Secretary-Treasurers and Executive Vice President History

Through 1989, an important position on the Board of Trustees was the Secretary-Treasurer, which was the predecessor to the Executive Vice President position. In 1990 the move to an Executive Vice President was formalized.

Straatsma Award for Excellence in Resident Education

Presentation: Thursday, January 26

The Straatsma Award was established through funding from the American Academy of Ophthalmology (AAO), the Association of University Professors of Ophthalmology (AUPO), and private funds, to recognize and celebrate an outstanding Program Director in ophthalmology.

Dr. Steven J. Gedde is a Professor of Ophthalmology and Vice Chairman of Education at Bascom Palmer Eye Institute. He received his medical degree from Vanderbilt University School of Medicine and completed an ophthalmology residency at Wills Eye Hospital, where he served as a Chief Resident. He pursued a glaucoma fellowship at Bascom Palmer Eye Institute. He has served as Bascom Palmer's Residency Program Director for 17 years and attributes the success of the residency program to outstanding chairmen and faculty who have been deeply committed to teaching the next generation of ophthalmologists. Dr. Gedde has published over 300 articles, book chapters, and abstracts, several of which are related to residency education. He is Editor of the Morning Rounds section of EyeNet, a forum for residents to publish interesting case reports, and serves on the Editorial Boards of six journals. Dr. Gedde has served on committees in national organizations focusing on residents and young ophthalmologists, including the American Academy of Ophthalmology OKAP Committee, the American Board of Ophthalmology (ABO) Exam Development Committee and Program Directors Task Force, the American Society of Cataract and Refractive Surgery Resident and Fellows Program Committee and Resident Education Task Force, and the American Glaucoma Society Education and Communication Committee. He serves on the AUPO Fellowship Compliance Committee and is a past member of the Program Directors Council. He has presented on topics involving residency education at various organizations' annual meetings and has been honored with several teaching awards in recognition of his commitment to residency education.

Excellence in Medical Student Education Award

Presentation: Thursday, January 26

The Award for Excellence in Medical Student Education provides national recognition for an outstanding medical student educator. It was established through funding from the Association of University Professors of Ophthalmology (AUPO) and the American Academy of Ophthalmology (AAO).

Dr. Rukhsana G. Mirza is an Associate Professor and Director, Medical Student Education in Ophthalmology at Northwestern University, Feinberg School of Medicine. She completed her MD at the Chicago Medical School, followed by an ophthalmology residency at Loyola University Medical Center. She finished her training by returning to Northwestern where she completed a fellowship in diseases of the retina and joined the faculty as a Medical Retina specialist. Rukhsana accepted the role as director of medical student education in 2007. She has been involved in all aspects of student education including an active role as clerkship director, serving on curriculum committees to expand ophthalmology exposure, and as module leader for the Head and Neck unit. In addition to student education she is involved in Northwestern's residency and retina fellowship programs serving as associate fellowship director. She is an advisor and research mentor to medical students, residents, and fellows. As an innovative educator, her work has received campus-wide recognition. She was inducted to the prestigious Feinberg Academy of Medical Educators where she received an Outstanding Teaching Award, and the Alpha Omega Alpha honors society as a faculty member at Northwestern. Dr. Mirza serves as President-Elect on the AUPO Medical Student Education (MSE) Council. She is an advocate for developing a core interactive curriculum in Ophthalmology that can be shared across schools, a primary initiative as a lead on the MSE Council Research Committee. Aside from her interest in medical education, she is a busy clinician and retinal researcher involved in original work and clinical trials. In addition to her active professional career, she is a wife and mother of three boys.

RUKHSANA G. MIRZA, MD

Resident and Fellow Research Forum Awards

Presentation: Friday, January 27

AUPO and Research to Prevent Blindness established the Resident and Fellow Research Forum to acknowledge the importance of research in ophthalmic education. The Forum is intended to encourage the most promising physicians-in-training to pursue a career in academic ophthalmology and vision research. Following are the 2017 recipients:

SHINICHI FUKUDA, MD, PHD is a Fellow in the Department of Ophthalmology and the Center for Advanced Vision Science at the University of Virginia. Dr. Fukuda obtained his MD and PhD from the University of Tsukuba in Japan, where he made contributions using 3D-anterior segment optical coherence tomography (AS-OCT) and 3D polarization sensitive AS-OCT in humans and also investigated regenerative medicine using vascular imaging. He has received the Alcon Novartis Hida Memorial Award, the Medical Research Encouragement Prize of The Japan Medical Association, and a Postdoctoral Fellowship for Research Abroad of Japan Society for the Promotion of Science. Currently, Dr. Fukuda is researching age-related macular degeneration (AMD) under the guidance of Dr. Jayakrishna Ambati. He seeks to be a physician-scientist by performing translational research. Dr. Fukuda's ultimate goal is to cure blinding diseases such as AMD.

SABRINA MUKHTAR, BA, completed her undergraduate education at University of California, Berkeley in 2011. She currently is a fourth year medical student at Virginia Commonwealth University School of Medicine and is pursuing her Masters in Public Health from University of Pittsburgh. In May 2017, she hopes to graduate with both her MD and MPH. Currently she is also a research fellow in Dr. Ladan Espandar's Ocular Surface Regeneration Lab at University of Pittsburgh's Department of Ophthalmology. She was always interested in Ophthalmology prior to medical school and her long-term aspirations include pursuing a career in academic ophthalmology and contributing to the field as a clinician scientist. While still developing her areas of interest, she would like to pursue a fellowship in either Cornea or Glaucoma in the future.

LEV PRASOV, MD, PHD is currently a second-year ophthalmology resident at the University of Michigan Kellogg Eye Center. He completed his undergraduate work at the University of Michigan studying Chemistry and Biochemistry. He subsequently completed his medical and graduate work at the University of Michigan and earned an MD and PhD in Human Genetics. His graduate work was in the laboratory of Tom Glaser, studying the role of Atoh7, a critical transcription factor for retinal ganglion cell development. He has continued to focus on his dual passions in genetics and ophthalmology, working with Dr. Julia Richards, Dr. Sally Camper, and Dr. Sayoko Moroi on finding new genes for familial glaucoma and related diseases. Specifically, he has used a combined approach of linkage and exome sequencing to find new disease causing genes. He is currently actively working on finding new genes and pathways for nanophthalmos, as well as defining the pathogenesis of this condition. In the future, he hopes to continue to merge his passions for ophthalmology and genetics by pursuing a career in ophthalmic genetics and providing comprehensive care to patients with genetic eye disease.

BRITTNI SCRUGGS, MD, PHD is currently a PGY-II ophthalmology resident at the University of Iowa. She received her BS with Honors in Biochemistry and Molecular Biology from Trinity University in San Antonio, Texas and her MD/PhD at Tulane University in New Orleans, Louisiana. Her graduate studies focused on developing novel mesenchymal stem cell therapies for patients affected with neurodegenerative diseases, including leukodystrophies and multiple sclerosis. As a resident, she is collaborating with researchers at the Wynn Institute for Vision Research to develop induced pluripotent stem cell therapy for patients with inherited eye diseases. Her project aims to fully optimize and describe the surgical techniques necessary for subretinal stem cell transplantation in addition to further investigating the effects of transplantation, including cell distribution, cell differentiation, and vision improvement after delivery. She aspires to be a physician-scientist who helps cure retinal blindness using safe, effective, and patient-derived therapies. She is the recipient of many awards, including the National Eye Institute Travel Grant for the 2016 ARVO meeting and the 2015-2016 VitreoRetinal Surgery Foundation (VRSF) Research Award. She attended the 2016 Heed Resident Retreat. Outside of residency, Brittni enjoys playing cello, running, and spending time with her husband and her energetic two-year-old daughter.
