Dear Colleagues,

On behalf of the Board of Trustees, I welcome you to Rancho Mirage and the 54th annual meeting of the Association of University Professors of Ophthalmology.

As ophthalmologists, it is difficult not to be struck by the significance of the year 2020 – the coincidence with our measure for perfect vision is too powerful to overlook. At AUPO, we strive to be 20/20 in all aspects of our professional responsibilities: not merely to be providers of outstanding care to promote visual function, but also to support discovery research to identify the causes of vision loss and develop new and better treatments, as well as investing time and resources to train future generations of ophthalmologists who will carry our torch in the years ahead. AUPO represents academic ophthalmology and we hope our organization provides the support you need so that you enjoy meaning and impact in your professional lives.

I attended my first AUPO annual meeting in 2003, shortly after becoming a department chair. Over the ensuing years, AUPO has grown in size, scope, and depth. Our core functions remain unchanged – providing a forum for exchange of best practices toward our shared mission, serving as the voice of the academic arm of our profession, and safeguarding the quality of ophthalmic education and research. However, I am proud that leaders across the organization continue to identify new and exciting ways to expand our offerings so that we attend to the needs and interests of different components of our community. AUPO now is the home to six groups of key leaders of our respective ophthalmology programs: department chairs, residency program directors, medical student educators, research directors, departmental administrators, and residency program coordinators. Our meeting organizers have provided content that addresses both the individual learning goals for each segment of membership, while also identifying themes for symposia that will be impactful for all our attendees.

In 2020 we are launching our inaugural class of the Academic Leadership Development Program (ALDP). This program was established to identify individuals with the interest in and potential for leadership positions in academic ophthalmology. The program will provide orientation and skills that will assist program participants in succeeding in the academic ophthalmology leadership pathway, while also providing meaningful opportunities to network with current leaders in our field as well as with fellow rising stars selected to participate in this program. To help launch ALDP, the theme of this year’s President’s Symposium is Leadership and will feature a keynote talk by Dr. David Parke, CEO of the American Academy of Ophthalmology entitled, “Lessons Learned from a Career of Leadership in Ophthalmology.” I am certain that this will be a great session that you won’t want to miss.

There are other insightful sessions planned for this meeting, addressing key topics like Professionalism, the PGY-1 Integration, Milestones 2.0, and Matching Success. You will hear lectures from the winners of the Straatsma Award for Excellence in Resident Education and the Excellence in Medical Student Education Award, as well as research talks from four outstanding trainees honored at the AUPO/RPB Resident and Fellow Research Forum. In addition, this year’s meeting will have a new session entitled, “The Best of the Journal of Academic Ophthalmology,” featuring talks from the authors of three manuscripts selected by Dr. Jack Cioffi, Editor-in-Chief, from articles published in JAO in the prior year. And once again, we will host Educating the Educators, Breakfast with Colleagues, and new member boot camps.

As AUPO enters its 54th year, we are healthy, fiscally sound, and strive to be attentive to the needs of the members. We plan to broaden our Board in order to engage a larger and more diverse cross section of our membership. The AUPO Council provides an opportunity for regular interchange between the different constituencies that enrich our academic ophthalmology community. And we are grateful to the members of the component leadership groups for their commitment to their peers and to our profession.

The continued success of this meeting would not be possible without the tremendous efforts of Steven Feldon, our Executive Vice President, and Lisa Brown, our lead administrator. They work tirelessly throughout the year on behalf of AUPO. I also want to express my gratitude to Lisa’s team at SF Association Management Services and to my fellow members of AUPO’s Board of Trustees - this is a large and complex meeting and it requires everyone’s input and effort to plan and execute it so successfully. Finally, I want to thank Research to Prevent Blindness for their continued extraordinary support of this meeting and academic ophthalmology in general. We are most appreciative!

Have a great meeting.

Paul Sternberg, Jr., MD
President
Meeting Information

AUPO MISSION
The mission of AUPO is to serve, strengthen, and represent departments of ophthalmology; to provide support, information, and leadership opportunities to department chairs, program directors, and other faculty members; to promote excellence in ophthalmic education; to foster vision research and to promote ethical practice and excellence in eye care to ensure the best possible vision for the public.

MEETING OBJECTIVES
After attending this program, participants should be able to:

• Discuss timely information from multiple external sources that facilitate growth of the academic missions in ophthalmology: research, education, and patient care.
• Facilitate collaborative discussions leading to best practices in academic ophthalmology.
• Develop consensus around newly introduced educational techniques for training of medical students, ophthalmology residents and fellows.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Straatsma Award for Excellence in Resident Education

The Straatsma Award was established through funding from the American Academy of Ophthalmology (AAO), the Association of University Professors of Ophthalmology (AUPO), and private funds, to recognize and celebrate an outstanding Program Director in ophthalmology.

Dr. Susan Culican served as the residency program director at Washington University in St. Louis for 15 years. She is a product of Wash U having received her BA, MD and PhD there. She stayed on at Wash U for Ophthalmology residency training where she enjoyed the benefit of mentorship from Drs. Mort Smith, Michael Kass and Russ Van Gelder. Following residency, she was selected to serve as chief resident, prior to completing her pediatric ophthalmology fellowship at Washington University and St. Louis Children’s Hospital. Predictably, she joined the faculty at Wash U in 2004.

Dr. Culican started her academic career as a clinician-scientist focused on discovering the cellular mechanisms that defined the critical period of visual development. Early in her career she realized that ophthalmology education, like ophthalmology clinical practice, could benefit from data-driven approaches. She has since applied her bench science skills to scrutinize and analyze what we do and how we do it in resident education to bring transparency and rigor to the understanding of how we measure and track resident performance throughout residency training.

Dr. Culican has served on numerous education and quality committees at Wash U and St. Louis Children’s Hospital. Nationally, she has served on AUPO and ACGME councils, committees and subcommittees, including most recently the Milestones 2.0 work group. She is a reviewer for many journals. Notably she is the Section Editor for Pediatric Ophthalmology for the British Journal of Ophthalmology.

Against all odds, Dr. Culican has finally graduated from Wash U. She recently accepted the position of Associate Dean of Graduate Medical Education and Designated Institutional Official at the University of Minnesota. While she will continue her research into Ophthalmology resident surgical assessment, she hopes to expand her evidence-based approach to residency education and assessment to all specialties.

Excellence in Medical Student Education Award

The Award for Excellence in Medical Student Education provides national recognition for an outstanding medical student educator. It was established through funding from the Association of University Professors of Ophthalmology (AUPO) and the American Academy of Ophthalmology (AAO).

Dr. JoAnn A. Giaconi is a Professor of Ophthalmology at the University of California, Los Angeles. She is a glaucoma specialist practicing both at the Stein Eye Institute and the Veterans Administration of Greater Los Angeles, where she oversees ophthalmology at four different clinical locations. She has served as Co-Director of Medical Student Education for the Department of Ophthalmology and the Stein Eye Institute since 2011. In this role, she is involved in all aspects of student education and mentorship, from creating a general med student curriculum in ophthalmology (then renovating it, and then redesigning it yet again, and constantly tweaking it to make students happy), to shaping course objectives for more senior medical students’ electives, working with individual students on rotations and research, and guiding students through the ophthalmology match process. She is an active member in the David Geffen School of Medicine’s many activities for students interested in surgical specialties, and currently serves on a committee to shape a bold new curriculum for the school. She is extremely happy to have former students return as residents in ophthalmology and fellows in glaucoma, however, she is even more thrilled that students who have pursued internal medicine and family practice seek out ophthalmology to teach at rounds in those specialties.

Dr. Giaconi is serving her last year on the AUPO Medical Student Educators Council as immediate past president. She is proud of her work and that of her fellow Council members on numerous Council projects and initiatives, such as the publication of new objectives for what every graduating medical student should know, the development of a future toolbox for MSEs on the AUPO website, the initiation of med ed literature reviews to stimulate ideas for education research, the AAO/AUPO med student website, and the Minority Ophthalmology Mentoring program.
RPB David F. Weeks Award for Outstanding AMD Research

The RPB David F. Weeks Award for Outstanding AMD Research (the “Weeks Award”) has been established through the generosity of Research to Prevent Blindness (RPB), an anonymous donor, and the Association of University Professors of Ophthalmology (AUPO), to annually recognize and celebrate an excellent researcher focused on age-related macular degeneration. The award carries the name of David F. Weeks, former President and Chairman of Research to Prevent Blindness, in honor of his contributions to the field of vision research.

Christine A. Curcio, PhD is White-McKee Endowed Professor of Ophthalmology and Visual Sciences at the University of Alabama at Birmingham School of Medicine (Birmingham, Alabama, USA). Collaborating with innovative eye banks for human donor eyes, she investigates retinal aging and age-related macular degeneration (AMD), focused on pathobiology and validation of clinical imaging technology, including optical coherence tomography, adaptive optics-assisted imaging, and fundus autofluorescence. Laboratory techniques include histopathology, electron microscopy, multispectral imaging, cell biology, immunohistochernistry, and lipoprotein biology. Collaborations bring in clinicopathologic correlation, visual function testing, epidemiology, image analysis, transcriptomics, and imaging mass spectrometry. Since 1984, research resulting in >185 peer review articles and >250 invited presentations on four continents has been funded by the National Institutes of Health, foundations, and industry. She serves on editorial boards of Investigative Ophthalmology & Visual Science and Retina. She was awarded the 2002 (inaugural) Roger H. Johnson Prize for Macular Degeneration research, and the 2014 Ludwig von Sallmann Prize. She is histologist to the Classification of Atrophy group, a clinical international consensus group that is newly defining AMD clinical trial endpoints via multimodal imaging.

The precisely organized outer retina, clarity of clinical imaging, mechanistic commonality with cardiovascular disease, and success in treating neovascular AMD all combine to accelerate progress. Dr. Curcio was motivated by the societal challenge of age-related disease. She trained in basic neuroscience and adopted tools of digital pathology. Her accurate maps of human photoreceptors demonstrated that rods outnumber cones in macula. Rod vulnerability and cone resilience in aging challenged the belief that AMD was a cone disease and lead to tests of night vision as functional outcomes. Her discovery and characterization of Bruch’s membrane lipoproteins, the main ultrastructural components of soft drusen, built on work by SH and JP Sarks. This led to Bruch’s membrane lipid scavenging as a novel and targeted therapeutic strategy now in development. Her Project MACULA website of high-resolution histology of AMD eyes (projectmacula.cis.uab.edu) revealed microscopic details of features seen first with clinical optical coherence tomography. These included a new layer of extracellular deposits, neurodegeneration and gliosis unique to macula, and multiple pathways of RPE death. Dr. Curcio believes that if we can see AMD, we can treat or prevent it, and we can see so much of it now.

Resident and Fellow Research Forum Awards

AUPO and Research to Prevent Blindness established the Resident and Fellow Research Forum to acknowledge the importance of research in ophthalmic education. The Forum is intended to encourage the most promising house officers to pursue a career in academic ophthalmology and vision research. Following are the 2020 awardees:

MATHIEU BAKHOUM, MD, PhD is a second-year vitreoretinal fellow at the University of California, San Diego. He graduated from Simon Fraser University, Burnaby, British Columbia, with a Bachelor of Science in molecular biology and biochemistry. He subsequently attended the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston, Texas, where he obtained his MD/PhD degree. His graduate work focused on the role of the lysosomal clearance mechanism, autophagy, in the development of neurodegenerative pathology. He completed his residency training at Nassau County Hospital in New York. His current research interest focuses on the biology of uveal melanoma, with the aim of understanding the basis behind metastatic tendencies in high-risk tumors. As a physician scientist, his career goal is to establish an independent laboratory to perform basic and translational research with direct clinical applications to benefit patients with ocular melanoma.

SIDDHARTH NARENDRAN, MD is currently a fellow in the Department of Ophthalmology and the Center for Advanced Vision Science at the University of Virginia. He completed his residency at Aravind Eye Hospital, Madurai, India before joining as a fellow under the mentorship of Dr. Jayakrishna Ambati. He has received the AIOS-HOYA Young Research Scholarship award from the All India Ophthalmological Society. His current research lies in understanding the role played by mechanotransduction, processes through which cells sense and respond to mechanical stimuli by converting them to biochemical signals, in inflammation and retinal pigmented epithelium degeneration in Geographic Atrophy. He is committed to pursuing a career as a clinician-scientist and hopes to serve patients both through direct clinical care and translational scientific research.

BRIAN SOETIKNO, PHD received his BS in Biomedical Engineering from Washington University in St. Louis, MO, where he studied biomedical optics under the mentorship of Lihong Wang, PhD. In the summer of 2013, he entered the Medical Scientist (MD/PhD) Training Program at the Northwestern University Feinberg School of Medicine, Chicago, IL. He completed a PhD in Biomedical Engineering in the fall of 2018 under the combined mentorship of Amani Fawzi, MD and Hao Zhang, PhD. His dissertation described advances in functional optical coherence tomography (OCT), including retinal oximetry with visible-light OCT and OCT angiography. He has authored more than 20 peer-reviewed publications and has presented at multiple conferences, including the ARVO Annual Meeting and the OCTA Summit. His notable awards include the 2017 OCTA Summit Outstanding Poster Award (Portland, OR), the 2016 Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness Grant, and the 2015 ARVO Travel Award. He also received an NIH F30 Ruth L. Kirschstein National Research Service Award. He expects to receive his MD in the spring of 2020 and pursue a residency in ophthalmology thereafter. Brian aspires to ultimately pursue a career in academic ophthalmology, where he hopes to combine his passion for engineering, innovation, and ocular surgery.

HARRIS SULTAN, MD, MS is a second-year vitreoretinal surgery fellow at Washington University in St. Louis. He completed his Bachelors, Masters and Medical degrees at the University of Connecticut and performed his preliminary medicine internship at Washington Hospital Center in Washington, DC. He completed his residency at the University of Texas Medical Branch/Blanton Eye Institute Program in Galveston, TX. Prior to medical school, he worked at a flow cytometry laboratory at Pfizer in Groton, CT evaluating clinical-trial specimens in various drug programs. He is now using that background evaluating microparticles found in the vitreous and how they may play a role in vitreoretinal disease pathogenesis. He plans to join a large retina-only private practice with access to industry, amenable for investigator-initiated studies.

AUPO News and Updates

With a new year upon us we are excited to share updates about significant new and continuing ventures that you will be hearing more about this year.

ACADEMIC LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM
The inaugural class of our new Academic Leadership Development Program has been selected. Nominations were received for 26 excellent candidates, demonstrating that there is excitement and a need for this new program. Congratulations to the 13 finalists who will embark on a seven-month journey starting in July and concluding at the 2021 Annual Meeting:

- Stephanie Baxter (Queen’s University),
- Yousuf Khalifa (Emory),
- Gary Lelli (Weill Cornell),
- Rukhsana Mirza (Northwestern),
- Yasha Modi (New York University),
- Yvonne Ou (UC San Francisco),
- Suzann Pershing (Stanford),
- Rajeev Ramchandran (University of Rochester),
- P. Kumar Rao (Washington University),
- Osamah Saeedi (University of Maryland),
- Lucia Sobrin (Harvard),
- Elliott Sohn (University of Iowa),
- and Misha Syed (University of Texas, Galveston). The nomination period for the 2021 program will open in Fall 2020.

RESIDENT SURGICAL CURRICULUM PROGRAM
Steady progress is being made toward a standardized resident surgical curriculum and program. The program will feature both a hands-on wetlab component and an online component that will include required readings, surgical video assignments, assessments and robust reporting and analysis. The goal is to start with an Advanced Phaco program for PGY-4 residents in the first quarter of 2021. More information will be shared in the coming months.

COMPENSATION SURVEY
The 2019 Faculty and Administrator Compensation Survey Report was released for Member Chairs to order in December. Data were submitted by 82 member organizations across the United States. Compensation and productivity data reflect 2,185 incumbents. These surveys represent the most comprehensive compensation data in academic ophthalmology and include ophthalmologists, optometrists, scientists and administrators in departments and divisions of ophthalmology within academic medical centers. Also considered is region of the country, academic rank, and subspecialty.

This ongoing effort demonstrates AUPO’s commitment to providing critical information that supports fair remuneration to faculty and staff.

WEBSITE ONLINE RESOURCES FOR 2020
New online toolkits are under development by the Program Directors Council and the Medical Student Educators Council. The toolkits will include a wide range of resources contributed by our own programs that are intended to provide members with one-stop access to helpful educational materials that have proven successful with peers across the country, rather than having to create them from scratch!

Also planned for the coming year is the addition of a directory of our own learned lecturers. This repository will provide departments of ophthalmology with a directory of members possessing particular areas of expertise who are available to lecture to medical students, residents, fellows, professional adult learners, and/or lay audiences.

WEEKS AWARD CHANGES
The RPB David F. Weeks Award for Outstanding AMD Research (the “Weeks Award”) is being renamed The RPB David F. Weeks Award for Vision Research. The purpose of the award is to recognize an outstanding ophthalmic vision scientist whose research has made meaningful contributions to the understanding and/or treatment of any potentially blinding eye disease. The amount of the award will be increased to $50,000 in unrestricted funding, payable to the individual awardee. The nomination process for this award will be open after the Annual Meeting through June 1st.

MINORITY OPHTHALMOLOGY MENTORING
2020 starts the third year of the AAO/AUPO Minority Ophthalmology Mentoring (MOM) program. Approximately 70% of AUPO Member programs continue to make financial contributions in support of this important program. Nearly 40% of programs have identified an AUPO Champion at their institution to help prioritize interest in ophthalmology with medical students and to promote success in the highly competitive ophthalmology residency application process. A big THANK YOU for your contributions. The program realized an increase in applicants in 2019. Ways to expand the number of participants is being explored.
